Full Schedule Of Events In Store At County Fair

A full schedule of events is in store at the Calloway County Fair which gets underway at the Calloway County Fairgrounds on 121 N. Monday, July 14.

The feature of the week will be the Ronnie Millsap Show, set for Thursday evening in the grandstand. Millsap was named Country Music Association's Male Vocalist of the Year after only two years in the country music field.

Monday, July 14, will be the official opening of the fair, with the Miss Murray-Calloway County Fair Queen to be crowned.

Eighteen local girls will vie for the title Miss Calloway County Fair Queen on opening night of the Calloway County Fair. The pageant is scheduled to begin at 7:30 p. m., Monday night, July 14th. Leo Blair, Peter Lund, and Charles Smith will furnish live music during the intermission.

Judges for the contest will be Jen Smith, Mayfield; Mr. John Stewart, Paducah; and Connie McVoy, also from Paducah. Mrs. Bobs Hopper will emcee the event.

The new 1975 Miss Calloway County Fair will represent Calloway County at the Kentucky State Fair in Louisville in January.

Awards to be given to the first three winners and Miss Congeniality will be donated by the Murray Woman's Club Sigma Department, The Poppy Shop, The Place, The Mademoiselle Shop, Fashion Two-Twenty and Merle Norman Studios. Mary Kay Cosmetics will donate a glamour case to the queen.

Special equipment for the event will be donated by the following: Crass Furniture Company will supply mirrors for the contestants to use backstage; J. H. Churchill Funeral Home is providing an awning and Murray Datsun, Inc. will provide the queen with a Datsun to drive during the week of the fair.

Sponsors for the beauty pageant are: The Peoples Bank, Ryan's Shoe Store, The Town and Country Shop, Ryan Milk Company, Inc., Michelson Jewelers, Inc. The Showcase, Bank of Murray, J. E. Littleton, Co., Interiors by Edward, Purdom Oldsmobile, Holiday Inn of Murray, Storey's Foods, Burger Queen, Dwain Taylor Chevrolet, Inc., Johnson's Grocery, Boone's, Inc., Irving P. Summer 'Pops' Concert Slated For Wednesday

Music ranging from the classics to Broadway will be featured by the Murray State University Summer Symphony Orchestra in its annual "Pops" Concert on the campus Wednesday, July 16.

Conducted by Neale B. Mason, associate professor of music, the concert to begin at 8:15 p. m. in Lovett Auditorium will include music by Copland, Strauss, Gould, Beethoven, and Leroy Anderson, as well as other composers.

Mason said the public is welcome to attend the admission-free concert, which has become a popular event of the summer term at Murray State.

A feature of the program will be the appearance of a Murray State graduate, clarinetist Mike Winslow, who will be the soloist in the first movement of Mozart's Clarinet Concerto with the orchestra. At the other end of the scale, the concert will also include the overture to the Broadway hit, "Funny Girl," and the popular "Fiddle Faddle."

The orchestra is made up of summer school students, local residents, high school students, and teachers and musicians from the general area who play together for their own enjoyment and to add to the summer session at Murray State.

Business Students Serving Area Through SBI Program

Advanced business students at Murray State University are involved for the first time this summer in the Small Business Institute (SBI) Program sponsored by the Small Business Administration (SBA) to provide counseling to small business owners.

Dr. Roy Kirk, chairman of the Department of Management in the College of Business and Public Affairs, said students working in teams of two are providing technical and management assistance this summer to operators of five small businesses who have agreed to cooperate with the SBA and Murray State in the program.

Murray State signed a contract with the SBA and is paid by the case for student consultant services in uncovering and helping to solve managerial problems. The SBI Program at Murray State will be expanded in the fall and is expected to continue beyond that.

Ford Says Push For Economic Recovery Should Be Restrained

CHICAGO (AP) — President Ford, making his first campaign-style trip since declaring his 1976 candidacy, says the push for economic recovery must be restrained lest pump-priming "break the economic dikes."

Appearing before a black-tie business audience here Friday night, Ford declared, "If we are to avoid new, perhaps worse inflation than before, then our recovery policies must be based on fiscal restraint."

He said "we must be moderate in our economic plans and expectations. False hopes must not be paraded before the American people — the promise of a quick fix — leaving them with empty illusions."

The President's three-day swing with Mrs. Ford into the Midwest is labeled non-political but, inevitably, virtually all his public appearances henceforth will be viewed to some extent in the context of his candidacy for the Republican presidential nomination next year.

Riding in the National Cherry Festival parade in Traverse City, Mich., Friday before flying here, Ford saw a crowd that would have warmed any candidate in the height of a campaign. The local sheriff's office estimated that 250,000 persons lined a mile and a half of street in the small lakeside city.

The event traditionally draws a big turnout, however, and few politically-oriented placards were in evidence along the route.

"How did you like that crowd?" Ford later asked a group of newsmen.

"A nice send-off for the campaign, wasn't it?" one responded.

Laughing, the President said, "Oh, this was just pure friendship."

While Ford's program today starts with an "informal Republican breakfast," his visit to Chicago was given a nonpartisan, or perhaps bipartisan, blessing as he was greeted on arrival by Democratic Mayor Richard J. Daley.

Before returning to Michigan Saturday afternoon, Ford is holding a regional news conference here and delivering the commencement address at Chicago State University.

In his dinner address Friday, Ford said that while "full economic recovery" is his first order of business, "we must not permit government pump-priming to break the economic dikes." He said:

"Moderation and restraint — these are not exciting words, but they are key words in my economic lexicon. They don't blow your mind. But neither will they blow the salary and savings you have worked hard for all your life," Ford said.

Ford returns to Traverse City to participate in a golf tournament late Sunday afternoon, then goes to nearby Interlochen for a youth concert before stopping for the night at Mackinac Island. He will return to the White House Sunday night.

Regional Halfway House Is Proposed At Mayfield Site

A meeting will be held on Aug. 27 at the First Baptist Church in Mayfield to give Baptist Churches throughout the eight-county Purchase Area an opportunity to accept a proposal for the establishment of a halfway house for criminal offenders according to Rev. Orman Stegall. The proposal will be presented at 10 a. m.

The August meeting was announced during a press conference at the Graves County courthouse when Mr. Stegall released the results of an 18-month study into the feasibility of locating a halfway house in Mayfield in three two-story buildings currently occupied by Mid-Continent Baptist Bible College on N. 15th Street.

The college first announced plans for the relocation of its campus in April of 1974. Groundbreaking was held July 4 for the first of four buildings planned on the new campus which is located about two miles north of here on U. S. 45.

Both state and federal funding is available for the operation of a halfway house, but money necessary to purchase property would have to be provided locally, Mr. Stegall said. The estimated cost of the land and three structures is $200,000, the Baptist minister said.

"We welcome the public's opinion even if they are against it," Mr. Stegall said. "That's why we are here today...to explain our program to you and the public. Our biggest goal is to inform the public how churches can become involved in crime prevention," he added.

Mr. Stegall said current cutbacks in both federal and state budgets have made it impossible to estimate the amount of funding available once the property is acquired. However, support and funding has been assured by the U. S. Bureau of Prisons and the Kentucky Bureau of Corrections. Federal funding also could be obtained through the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration.

The halfway house would be governed by a non-profit corporation, referred to by Mr. Stegall as Baptist Brothers. Membership of the organization would be composed of Baptist "men and women from the Purchase Area," he said.

A non-profit sponsoring agency is necessary, according to the Rev. Wendell Rone Sr., to avoid the conflict of church and state. Mr. Rone is dean of graduate studies and chairman of the building committee for the Bible college.

AT EASE — More at ease near a truck, Ralph Bogard, magistrate of the third district, says he seldom finds time to get far from trucks or his work. Once home, phone calls occupy a great deal of his evening, but, "I enjoy it all," he says.

Magistrate Ralph Bogard Defines Goals For County

By NANCY PETERSON

With hard work as a hobby, Ralph Bogard, magistrate of district three, has some definite goals for Calloway County. The slight, tanned, reticent native of the county, reluctant to speak of himself, spoke of his hopes and desires for his area.

"I'd like to see wooden bridges replaced with cement structures, and better farm roads in my district," said Bogard. "County-wide I think we should have better roads, more and better recreational facilities, and a place for senior citizens to gather," he added.

"Another of my primary interests is the establishment of garbage pick-up throughout the county. In addition to being a convenience for the people, it would certainly help eliminate roadside dumping," said Bogard.

Operating his own trucking firm, Bogard employs two men full-time, and splits his time between his business and his elective duties. "I started my dirt and gravel hauling business in 1946, and it's been very enjoyable," he said.

Elected in 1973 for a four-year term, the 51-year old was born in the eastern part of the county, and currently resides on South 16th in Murray.

"I feel as though the magistrates work well as a group...although each of us is interested in our own district, we're also very concerned with how things effect the county as a whole. The fiscal effort is a good working-body, and there's a lot of cooperation present among its members," Bogard said.

Serving in a magisterial function, he serves on the Emergency Ambulance Service board. "People ought to know just what kinds of things we are involved in. It's not just all road repair," he added.

He and his wife, Eva Frances, have one son at home, Kenny, and two married daughters, Judy and Shere, who operate a local beauty salon. "What little spare time I find I usually spend watching sports on the television...that's about my only hobby, I guess. But with everything I do, who needs a hobby?" questioned Bogard.

Your Individual Horoscope

Frances Drake

FOR SUNDAY, JULY 13, 1975

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

ARIES
 (Mar. 21 to Apr. 20) ♈
 It would be wise to keep plans flexible now. Certain changes of circumstance may call for sudden improvisation.

TAURUS
 (Apr. 21 to May 21) ♉
 Whether you have elected to travel or stay at home, you seem assured of heartwarming displays of affection, interesting communications and splendid cooperation.

GEMINI
 (May 22 to June 21) ♊
 A fine Mercury position encourages your particular know-how, sensitivity to delicate situations and your reasoning powers. These are winners always — but especially now.

CANCER
 (June 22 to July 23) ♋
 Some tension indicated. Avoid highly strung or neurotic persons, and keep out of situations which could needlessly involve you in others' problems.

LEO
 (July 24 to Aug. 23) ♌
 Some situations complicated. Be sure you have all the facts before making decisions. Whether day is for recreation or you have strenuous tasks, remain composed.

VIRGO
 (Aug. 24 to Sept. 23) ♍
 Do not yield to indifference nor lose confidence in a matter which seems quite stymied. Strengthen your hand with facts; your faith with courage.

LIBRA
 (Sept. 24 to Oct. 23) ♎
 You normally abide by your contracts and promises, and here is a day for stressing this integrity. A novel adventure could please you.

SCORPIO
 (Oct. 24 to Nov. 22) ♏
 Do not scatter energies and DO avoid extravagance. Be realistic and pursue only worthwhile activities — whether at work or play.

SAGITTARIUS
 (Nov. 23 to Dec. 21) ♐
 What's expedient is not always wise. Be careful where and when you must refuse, consent, or dismiss suggestions from your mind. But don't automatically reject another's idea.

CAPRICORN
 (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) ♑
 You may be undergoing a period of disinterest, thereby making error through your miscalculation or insufficient thought. Be careful!

AQUARIUS
 (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) ♒
 Excellent planetary influences. You will not have to strain to accomplish now. A good period for building up your potentials, reviving a project previously set aside.

PISCES
 (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) ♓
 Do not make any final decisions until you have had enough time to weigh all the pros and cons. And, even if you make one which you consider final, you may have to make later revisions.

YOU BORN TODAY
 are endowed with a fine mind, a great love of home and family and a talent for mathematics and science. Your loyalty and sense of responsibility are outstanding, as are your conservatism and conventionality. You are extremely versatile and, if you do not lose confidence in yourself (a Cancerian tendency), can become highly successful in almost any career you choose. You could turn to the literary world and shine in it, or a business connected with books; could excel in real estate, archeology, music, medicine, the law or architecture. Traits to curb: jealousy and overpossessiveness. Birthdate of: John Dee, mathematician.

FOR MONDAY, JULY 14, 1975

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

ARIES
 (Mar. 21 to Apr. 20) ♈
 You can afford to be a bit daring now. Do something — anything — to lessen the depth of any possible rut in which you may find yourself.

TAURUS
 (Apr. 21 to May 21) ♉
 Venus, favorable, stimulates your skills and talents. You should accomplish much. Keep the ball rolling, the door to opportunity open.

GEMINI
 (May 22 to June 21) ♊
 Mercury influences continue to stimulate movement, ideas for expansion. Get at basics, clearly understood ideas for planning and action.

CANCER
 (June 22 to July 23) ♋
 Gains indicated from past good efforts. But don't rest on your laurels. Plan to benefit by the procedures which proved so profitable in the past.

LEO
 (July 24 to Aug. 23) ♌
 There is a present tendency to take on more activities than reasonable. You know what this has meant before; take steps to prevent it. Avoid anxiety.

VIRGO
 (Aug. 24 to Sept. 23) ♍
 A day for optimism! You will receive unusual gains — most likely for having done exceptionally well in projects which called for some clever organization.

LIBRA
 (Sept. 24 to Oct. 23) ♎
 An ideal day in which to gather in the fruits of past endeavors. Reward may come in the form of a promotion — with expanded prestige.

SCORPIO
 (Oct. 24 to Nov. 22) ♏
 Take the necessary measures to protect certain economic interests which have been threatened. You can do it, but you'll need a cool, level head.

SAGITTARIUS
 (Nov. 23 to Dec. 21) ♐
 Now's the time to make the effort toward the attainment of a major goal. You have plenty of stellar support to back you.

CAPRICORN
 (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) ♑
 Your outlook similar to that of Sagittarius. If you are bursting with self-confidence, as you should be, this is the day for gaining cooperation in putting over a pet project.

AQUARIUS
 (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) ♒
 Several chances to do better than usual. Take advantage of all worthwhile opportunities. A good period to try out new ideas and methods.

PISCES
 (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) ♓
 Aspects now increase your desire for further recognition and prestige. Both can be attained by using a new approach. Don't stymie yourself by sticking to the traditional.

YOU BORN TODAY
 are endowed with a warm personality, great dignity and graciousness, a sense of humor and immense practicality. You are more outgoing than many other Cancerians and could make a great success on the stage — especially in musical comedy. You could also succeed in literature or in the legal field. Also, unlike most others born under your Sign, you tend to be high-strung as well as temperamental. Try to master these traits in order to acquire more poise and balance. Birthdate of: Gerald R. Ford, 38th Pres., U.S.A.

Dear Abby

Bible Still No Excuse For Long Hair

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1975 by Chicago Tribune-M. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I read in your column that a teenage boy, much to the dismay of his mother, had long hair and tried to justify it by saying that Jesus had long hair. His mother then said, "So you want to be like Jesus? O.K. Jesus didn't have a car—he had to walk everywhere. So just hand over the car keys!"

And you, Dear Abby, said: "That Jesus story doesn't hold up very well because nowhere in the Bible does it state that Jesus had long hair. In fact there are Biblical injunctions against long hair. (New Testament, I Corinthians, Chapter 11, Verse 14.)"

Well, Dear Abby, you are mistaken: Jesus DID have long hair because Jesus was a Nazarene, and the laws for the Nazarenes are given in Numbers, Chapter 6: "All the days of the vow of separation there shall be no razor come upon his head, until the days be fulfilled, in which he separated himself unto the Lord, he shall be holy, and shall the locks of the hair of his head grow."

D.H.J.: RALEIGH, N.C.

DEAR RALEIGH: Before I throw in the towel AND the razor, let's hear from a Bible college student in Los Angeles:

DEAR ABBY: First of all, if Jesus had long hair, what has that to do with today? In His day all men had long hair. It was the custom. We could take that same logic re George Washington and powdered wigs. He wasn't the only man in his day to wear powdered wigs, so why do we use him as an example?

I am tired of hearing people quote Corinthians 11:14 ("Doth not even nature itself teach you that if a man have long hair, it is a shame unto him") to support their stand against long-haired men.

What the Bible really says is that it is a shame for a man to wear a hairdo in imitation of women.

I hope that through your column you can get people to stop using Jesus Christ as an excuse for wearing long hair, beards, sandals, robes or whatever the wearing apparel of the day was. Judas Iscariot and Pontius Pilate also had long hair. Why don't people use THEM as examples? Sign me

BIBLE STUDENT

DEAR ABBY: I am 26-years-old, married for seven years, and have worked every day since I was 17. My husband has wandered from job to job and has had periods of unemployment up to nine months. On one occasion I have even had to work two jobs. Fortunately, I was smart enough not to have any children. My husband is presently unemployed (always, conveniently, in warm weather) and spends most of his time riding around on his $4,000 motorcycle.

Nothing irks me more than to come home from working all day and have to clean, cook, do laundry, etc. In seven years of marriage, I have never come home to a meal on the table. My arm was in a sling for a week, and I had to wash dishes one-handed. On the day I came home from the hospital after surgery, I spent the afternoon cleaning because I couldn't stand the mess. If I ask for help, he says I am "nagging" and that "no other guy helps his wife with the housework; that is strictly a woman's job."

I think marriage should be 50-50. If, after men left their mothers' bosoms, they made marriage a 50-50 deal, the divorce rate in this country wouldn't be so high.

FED-UP BUT STILL PLUGGING

DEAR FED: You don't tell me what your problem is, but you have given ME one. What are you still "plugging" for? I must have missed something.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Hate to write letters? Send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212, for Abby's booklet "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped (20¢) envelope.

Mrs. Carter Presents Program At Meeting Of Magazine Club

The Magazine Club met Thursday, June 26, in the home of Mrs. F. E. Crawford. Mrs. R. F. Dixon gave the devotion.

The program was given by Mrs. W. Z. Carter who reviewed the warnings from "Silent Spring" by Rachel Carson and later warnings by Frank Graham. These warnings are over the use of all insecticides, new chemicals come from laboratories in an endless stream, over two hundred basic chemicals have been created and these sprays, dusts and aerosols are now applied to farms, gardens and homes, the speaker said.

Mrs. Carter said the most alarming of all man's assaults upon the environment is the contamination of air, earth, rivers, and sea with dangerous and even lethal materials. Traces of these pesticides have been recovered from most of the major rivers, from the bodies of birds, fish and wild animals and wheat. This is a problem that concerns a great many people.

Mrs. Crawford served a delicious dessert to the seventeen members present.

Use The Least Electricity To Keep Food Frozen

Here's how you do it. Keep your freezer at zero degrees. A lower temperature wastes electricity. A higher one shortens the length of time food can be kept safely.

Without packing, keep the freezer full; this way the food itself helps to maintain a constantly cold temperature.

Label and date all food. This will enable you to find a package quicker, with a minimum loss of cold air.

And, finally, to help your freezer work with less strain, clean the condenser coils (located behind or beneath the freezer) at least once a year.

Murray-Mayfield

The end result of many hours of hard toil for the Mareello family.

Pickers invaded the fields of Andy Mareello's tomato farm last week to begin the harvest of Mareello tomatoes.

Tomatoes, ready for harvest, will soon be packaged and sent to various parts of the nation from a small farm in Calloway County.

Charles Mareello sets a basket of tomatoes on the back of a truck to be taken to market.

Tomato Farm Becomes New Industry In County

After 20 years of tomato farming in Florida, Andy Mareello decided that he had had enough of the hectic life in the Sunshine State, packed it up and moved to Murray, Kentucky.

"The people here are so friendly, sometimes it's hard to believe," said Mareello, who has begun a tomato plantation north of Murray. With the help of his wife, Mary, son Charles, and daughter-in-law Eilene, the native New Yorker has set out about three acres with 15,000 tomato plants.

Several varieties have been tried in the small-scale operation, which Mareello will expand as he determines which types of tomato grow best in Calloway County soil.

"We have found a home here, a permanent place to begin our new operation," Mareello said. "We got lucky and picked out a good spot to begin our farm," he added. The Mareello's own a 16-acre tract, most of which they are leasing out for the time being.

Mareello tomatoes are distributed to such places as Detroit, Chicago, Indiana and others, with the help of contractual relationship with Gerald Moore of Possum Trot, who packages and ships the tomatoes at the present time.

After the picking is over, Mareello plans to open a stand to sell to the general public, probably within a few days. His farm is located on the Poor Farm Road, a few miles west of Highway 641 North.

Future plans call for a pick-your-own operation with new crops being added each season, such as corn, melons, peppers and others.

"No matter how good your results are, tomatoes are one crop that can always be improved," Mareello pointed out, but added that he is well pleased with the results this first year.

Among the "good people" the Mareello's have found in Calloway County is County Agent Ted Howard, who has steered the newcomers toward several answers to problems. "He's been a lot of help in selecting different varieties of tomatoes for this area," Mareello said.

So, another new "industry" has arrived in Calloway County; maybe not the largest, but certainly one that should be well-received in an area that is always ready for new friends.

Rows of baskets filled with tomatoes await loading onto a truck.

Mrs. Mareello helps in the entire operation of the farm.

Facts Need To Be In Order

An adage in which we firmly believe says "straighten up your own house before criticizing your neighbor's."

We wish the Kentucky Department of Labor, which is supported by our tax dollars, had done their homework prior to filing suit against the City of Murray, Mayor John E. Scott and members of the Murray Common Council this week.

This editorial is not designed to favor either the city or the firemen named as plaintiffs in the suit who claim to have been illegally exempted from overtime wages by a city ordinance.

We do wish, however, to point out what appears to be carelessness on the part of state Labor Department attorneys who filed the suit.

The suit, filed by Earl M. Cornett, general counsel for the Department of Labor and E. H. Tingle, assistant counsel, attorneys for the plaintiffs, names George R. Wagoner, acting commissioner of labor on behalf of several City of Murray firemen as the plaintiffs.

The suit further names, and we quote, "City of Murray, Mayor John E. Scott, Thomas Rushing, Stanford Andrus, David Willis, Melvin Hendley, Rex Alexander, Jo Crass, Fred Workman, William Furches, Phillip Tibbs, Howard Kohneon, Art Lee" as the defendants.

In essence, the suit is filed against the city, the mayor and the city council. We would think the labor department's lawyers could have gotten their names straight before drafting the suit.

In two instances, names of councilmen listed have been misspelled. It is Melvin Henley, not Hendley, and Howard Koenen, not Kohneon. Furthermore, City Clerk Stanford Andrus (not Andurs) has also been included as an elected city councilman and council member H. Ed Chrisman was excluded altogether.

And on top of this, even though our mayor's name was correct in the list of defendants in the suit, the body of the lawsuit says in one instance, "That the defendant, Mayor James E. Scott, is the Mayor of Murray."

We do not deny the right of the Labor Department to intervene on behalf of our firemen, or any other labor group when evidence of statute violations are alleged. That's their job.

But we do expect the attorneys on state payrolls to at least get their facts straight before entering any legal action against any municipality, cooperation, individual or other legal entity.

Is that too much to ask of state government?

Local firemen appear quite excited about a device called Probeye which the Norfolk Fire Department has purchased and which did some amazing things in a recent demonstration.

The Probeye's infra-red screen, seen as a tremendous aid in saving lives and otherwise facilitating firefighters in their work, is able to detect unseen hotspots in walls and can pierce smoke-filled spaces to show the outlines, say, of a human being.

Maybe, too, a smoke-piercing gadget like that would come in handy for keeping the politicians honest when they gather in some of those backrooms at convention time.

Experts Agreeing That U.S. Recession Over

NEW YORK (AP) — When the economy was a full year into recession, some of the self-acknowledged experts were still debating whether there was a recession at all.

Now that there are definite signs that the recession is hitting bottom, and in some instances even rebounding a bit, some of the same observers are declaring the nation's troubles over.

The tendency is not limited to a few commentators, nor does it seem to be related to a person's station in life, other than for employment and politics. If you are employed you can afford to be optimistic; if your party is in power, you must be.

Alan Greenspan, the chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers comments that for all practical purposes the recession is over, while AFL-CIO head George Meany is agnostic at between 7.9 million and 8.5 million jobs.

Headline writers tend to get in the swing of things. So do those who conduct polls and surveys. So do the hucksters who want to spur sales.

Consumer confidence, as measured by the University of Michigan Survey Research Center, rebounded "sharply" in May. But note: It still resides at one of the lowest levels in three decades.

The results for May, said the authors of the study, remain "below the lowest point reached in any previous post-World War II recession." The recovery, therefore, "will be somewhat slow, rather than fast."

The National Association of Purchasing Management, a trade group, surveyed its members and found what is described as a surge of new orders. But the news really wasn't all that good.

The survey shows that 33 per cent reported increases in new orders during June, but that 20 per cent showed declines. Several areas of weakness were noted, in publishing, lumber, furniture and steel.

The nation's farms are expected to produce record harvests, and this might well be the case. But does this automatically mean lower food prices, as some expect, or instead will we be fed explanations of how drought or flood or blight or distribution problems aborted the high hopes?

Probably more important, will high oil prices disrupt the plans and forecasts? The situation is unstable from almost any perspective.

Without sufficient oil the U.S. economy cannot operate effectively or remain under control. And yet, there is a basic conflict between the country's energy policy and its economic policy.

That is, the country wants to put its under-utilized plants and idle workers to productive use, while at the same time trying to discourage, through high prices, the use of energy.

The existence of that high jobless rate, discouraging in itself, will also tend to hold back the economy. With the nation's labor force in excess of 90 million workers, a jobless rate of 7.5 per cent would mean close to seven million workers idle, unable to produce or to some extent, even consume.

Consumer Comment

On Mower Safety

Nancy was mowing long wet grass, and the grass began to back up at the discharge opening. She reached into the chute to brush away a clump of grass, but she reached too far; her fingers were struck by the blade and one had to be amputated.

According to the Consumer Product Safety Commission, this is a typical accident — one of over 50,000 injuries associated with power lawn mowers last year.

Reel lawn mowers are frequently considered safer than rotary mowers, basically because their blades move more slowly. However, most consumers choose the more efficient, if more dangerous, rotary mowers, with blades reaching speeds of 200 miles per hour, hurling objects 50 feet or more.

If you are in the market for a lawn mower, keep safety as well as cost in mind.

1. Safety instructions on use and maintenance should be provided with the mower and the machine itself should carry a warning label.

2. The lawn mower handles should have "upstops," which prevent them from rising up when the machine hits an obstacle.

3. The discharge opening should be aimed downwards.

4. There should be a rear guard to prevent your hands or feet from coming in contact with the rotating blade.

5. The engine exhaust should not be directed at the grasscatching bag; sparks from a backfiring engine could ignite the bag.

If you would like information on the safe use of power lawn mowers, write to the Consumer Product Safety Commission, Washington, D. C., 20207.

If you have a consumer complaint, contact the Attorney General's Division of Consumer Protection. Write to: Attorney General's Division of Consumer Protection, The Capitol, Room 34, Frankfort, Ky. 40601. Kentucky consumers may call toll-free on the consumer hotline by dialing 1-800-372-2960.

Selenium And Dental Caries

By F.J.L. Blassingame, M.D.

BLASSINGAME

Tooth decay (dental caries) is often referred to as the most common human disease. It has many causes, one of which apparently relates to trace amounts of certain minerals.

Epidemiological studies in the United States and in the Soviet Union, as well as certain animal studies with rats and monkeys, indicate that the intake of increased amounts of selenium increases the frequency of dental caries, especially if the ingestion takes place during the time of tooth development. Selenium is a trace element which resembles sulfur.

Thomas Shearer, Ph. D., and associates of the Dental School of the University of Oregon, reported in the American Medical Association's Archives of Environmental Health on a study made in 17 states on selenium and its relation to dental caries. They noted a positive association between caries and the content of selenium in certain foods, including human milk and cow's milk. The authors also observed a relationship between the selenium in milk and that in forage crops for cattle.

The trace amounts of selenium found by the researchers in human milk samples were very small, averaging about 0.018 parts per million, varying from a low of 0.007 to 0.033 parts per million. The optimal amount is unknown, but high levels are undesirable and are consistently related to frequencies of dental caries above normal. More information is needed regarding the actual upper limits of selenium in diets beyond which its intake encourages dental disease.

The amount of selenium in cow's milk depends on the content of this mineral in the diet of the cows. The concentration of selenium in bottled cows' milk has been four times higher in certain samples tested in various cities as compared to similar samples tested in other cities. Milk may be transported great distance before it is consumed, however.

The Food and Drug Administration has recently approved the addition of selenium to poultry and swine feeds, thus theoretically allowing more of this mineral to accumulate in human breast milk by means of the diet of the mother.

More research is needed to determine the facts about traces of selenium in our diets and what can be done to lessen dental caries.

Q. Mrs. G. S. states that she and her husband have been advised that their child has an average intelligence quotient (I.Q.) and they are worried that such a finding means a lighted life for the youngster.

A. Don't be worried about an "average" intelligence. A high I.Q. test does not guarantee happiness or success. Such testing is not absolutely accurate but is a general measure of mental ability. Other factors in a person also are important — energy, drive, honesty and integrity, general appearance, and personality. The important thing is to show your child affection and support and help him to make the most of his natural talents. Many of us fall far short of doing so.

Q. Miss C. D. wants to know how many medical schools are located in the United States.

A. There are 117 medical schools in operation with enrollment at an all-time high, and several additional schools are in the development stage.

Turnabout Fair Play In Garbage Collection

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. — In the belief that turnabout is fair play, a local newspaper has done unto the National Enquirer what it did unto Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger: sift through the garbage.

The Enquirer, a weekly newspaper based in nearby Lantana, sent reporter Jay Gourley to haul away trash from the Kissinger household in Washington's Georgetown section on Tuesday.

Gourley, who was quizzed for two hours by the Secret Service, retained the five bags of trash.

Reporter Steve Mitchell of the Palm Beach Post was luckier in his efforts Wednesday. He managed to slip away undetected after he rummaged through an Enquirer dumpster.

"My goal was the same as the Enquirer reporter: to sort through old bills and any other old documents for a story," Mitchell wrote of his escapade.

"If apprehended, my defense would be the same as the Enquirer's: the trash and garbage, once discarded, belongs to anybody who has the stomach to go through it."

Mitchell said it took him just three minutes to stuff a big bag chock-full of the Enquirer's leavings.

He said he rejected "the ruins of a pizza and the gnawed hulk of what once had been the pride of Col. Sanders" and concentrated on printed material that turned out to be rejected stories and correspondence, computer print-outs of Enquirer stories and other relatively routine items.

"It was not until we arrived back at the Post and began going through our loot that I realized what a prize we had," Mitchell wrote. "It was nothing less than the secret of the National Enquirer's success — a memo to the editorial staff from publisher Generoso Pope Jr. himself."

Mitchell said the Aug. 17, 1973, memo told the staff how to write stories "packed with color and emotion ... We need quotes that tug at the heart. Prod, push and probe the main characters in the story. Help them frame their answers."

Mitchell said Pope gave his workers an example: "How did it feel?" "Bad." "No, I mean what did it feel like?" "I don't know, it just hurt." "Was it a sharp pain?" "No." "Was it more like a toothache?" "No."

"Did you ever feel anything like it before?" "Not really, but it was something like an electrical shock." "Where did you feel it?" "It hit me in the back of the neck and went down my spine." "Did you scream?" "I couldn't."

According to Pope's memo, the reporter is ready to proceed: "Let's see if I got this straight. You said, 'The pain hit me. It was like an electric shock. It started in my neck and shot down my spine. I wanted to scream but I couldn't. I've never felt anything like it.'" "Yes, that's it."

Meanwhile, Commerce Secretary Rogers C. B. Morton is trying to get someone from the Enquirer to pick up the trash from his house in Alexandria, Va.

"Tuesday and Thursdays," Morton jokingly told Nat Chazan, editor of the Enquirer, in a telephone conversation Wednesday. But Chazan said he wasn't authorized to order Gourley to snatch Morton's trash.

Big Eater—Seven Year Old Running Up Grocery Bills

TITUSVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Cheree Taylor won an eating contest by downing 11 hard-boiled eggs in four minutes, placed second in the pie eating event and then polished off six cotton candies, six ice cream cones, fried chicken, potato salad and baked beans.

Since that Fourth of July picnic contest, the skinny 7-year-old has been eating, eating, eating.

"Until last weekend we had to literally force her to eat and sometimes we even had to paddle her rear," her mother, Sherry Taylor, said Tuesday. "We had even taken her to the doctor because she was so skinny."

"We don't know what to do now — be happy or worried. I don't know what's gotten into her."

Ever since the Friday eating binge, the 55-pound youngster has been stuffing herself daily with more food than "anybody in the family," said Mrs. Taylor, who has two sons.

She says Cheree packs away a big breakfast, a big lunch and a big dinner, sandwiched around snacks.

Mrs. Taylor, 31, says she isn't really worried about Cheree's health "because she burns it off and hasn't gained any weight," but she says she has started to wonder about the family's budget.

Her husband, Fred, is an unemployed aerospace worker and the family's only source of income is unemployment insurance.

"She's eating us out of house and home," Mrs. Taylor said. "You ought to see our grocery bill. I keep asking her, 'When are you going to slow down?' And she just says, 'But I'm hungry.'"

Mrs. Taylor said she was amazed when her 4-foot-1 daughter insisted on entering the egg eating contest for children at a Jaycees picnic.

"I told her she couldn't eat enough to win but she was determined and she did it," Mrs. Taylor said. "She would have won the pie eating contest, too, except she ate the crust and all and the boy who won didn't bother with the crust."

"The judge just looked at her and said, 'My God, she ate the whole thing.'"

When a newsman asked Cheree where she was putting all that food, she replied, "In my stomach."

Testimony Continues In Trial Of Forbes

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — "It's an unwritten rule of hockey that a stick is a cheap-shot instrument," an amateur hockey player testified Friday in the assault trial of Boston Bruins player Dave Forbes.

"You don't have very good leverage on skates so you can't do much damage by just fighting with your hands," added Mark Zelenovich, 25, of Minneapolis. He said he began playing youth hockey when he was in grade school, played on his high school team and currently plays in Minneapolis recreational leagues.

Forbes is charged with aggravated assault on allegedly jabbing Henry Boucha of the Minnesota North Stars in the eye with a hockey stick Jan. 4 in a game at Bloomington, Minn.

Witnesses Friday said they saw Forbes charge Boucha as the two players left the penalty box, strike the Minnesota player with his stick and continue attacking him with his fists.

Robert Utecht, the public address announcer for the North Stars, said he saw the incident from a distance of about 10 feet.

"Forbes jabbed his stick at Henry's eye as though it was a bayonet," said Utecht. He said Forbes then "hammered" at Boucha's head with his fists until several Minnesota players pulled him off.

Utecht and two other witnesses said Forbes was congratulated when he returned to the Boston bench after the incident.

"I saw the coach (Boston's Don Cherry) put his arm around Forbes and pat him on the back," said Utecht.

Zelenovich said he saw a Boston player, Ken Hodge, shake Forbes' hand when he returned to the bench.

Witnesses also told of the beating Forbes allegedly gave Boucha, who had fallen to the ice after Forbes' first blow.

Minneapolis radio announcer

Roger Erickson said Boucha fell to the ice and "blood splattered all over. Forbes jumped on top of him and began pummeling him with his fists," Erickson said.

Roger Lohr, a season ticketholder from New Brighton, Minn., said Forbes hit Boucha several times with his fists and then "grabbed two handfuls of hair and pounded his head on the ice."

The case marks the first time in the United States that an incident involving participants in a professional sports event has been taken to criminal court.

Defense Atty. Ronald Meshbesh said Friday his presentation will be brief. Prosecution attorneys said they hope to wrap up their case Tuesday or early Wednesday, so it's possible the case could go to the jury by the end of next week.

The Army Green

By SFC JERRY WORK
A Cause For Celebration

The Fourth of July means different things to different people. Probably most think of it as the day set aside to commemorate the breaking away of the United States from England.

Some, however, see the day as signifying something different. We are among that group. We see the holiday as recalling not so much a breaking away but a bringing together.

As a result of the signing of the Declaration of Independence, Americans of Varied origins, faiths and colors united to stand tall against a common enemy. Personal prejudices and ambitions were set aside for a prolonged period of time, by a vast number of people in favor of a cause. They stood shoulder to shoulder in the ranks of the newly formed Army.

At its best, the Spirit of '76 is a spirit not of division but one of unity. Insofar as we reflect this spirit today, we reflect and fulfill the goals of the first Patriots.

Military Police Still Going To The Dogs

Two members of the Military Police at Ft. Jackson, South Carolina, weigh less than 85 pounds, says SFC Jerry Work, local Army representative. But they are as deadly as a gun, more powerful than a man and as loyal as lifelong friends.

They are Prince and Rebel, German Shepherds assigned to the Provost Marshal K-9 Section. The dogs patrol off-limit areas, assist with control during payday activities in crowded areas, and help disperse large groups. Additionally, Prince searches for narcotics.

"I'd rather have Prince than another MP or a gun," says Specialist William White, Prince's trainer. "When a man faces a vicious-looking dog, he'll back down every time."

"The dogs are classified 'Maximum Force,'" says Specialist White. "To turn one loose on somebody would be as serious as shooting him."

Neither Prince or Rebel has yet been permitted to attack.

The dogs aren't trained until they are one year old and weigh at least 55 pounds. They also must pass intelligence tests.

More information on Military Police enlistment option may be made by contacting Sergeant Jerry Work at the Mayfield Shopping Plaza or by calling collect 247-4525.

Husband And Wife Square Off In Army Exercise

An Army husband and wife were on opposing sides during Operation Gallant Shield 75, a joint service training exercise at Ft. Bliss, Texas, according to SFC Jerry Work, local Army representative. This makes Specialist 4th Class Jim and PFC Debea Parnell professional enemies.

The Parnells were married one year before Jim decided to join the Army. Debea joined a few months later "to be with my husband and supply an additional income." She was temporarily assigned to a different unit, however, which is why they are on opposing sides of the training exercise.

Later this year they will be reunited when Specialist Parnell is re-assigned to the 9th Division at Ft. Lewis.

Army Enlistment Provides Unexpected Reunion

Two brothers found themselves together for the first time in 15 years when they arrived at Ft. Jackson, South Carolina, for basic training and were assigned to the same unit.

Richard and Thomas Lee, from Guatemala City, Guatemala, were separated after coming to the U. S. Both decided to join the Army, complete their education, and apply for Officers Candidate School. Neither knew where the other was being sent for basic training.

The Kentucky Division Of Forestry: What It Does And How It Serves

Kentucky forests played as much a part in the state's history as did Daniel Boone and other early explorers. The forests were home for wild game that existed in abundance and the timber supplied material for building homes and furniture. There were 25 million acres of trees in Kentucky when the early settlers began establishing homesteads.

In 1870, when Kentucky produced over 200 million board feet of lumber, it ranked fifteenth among the states of the nation in lumber production. By 1907, lumber production reached one billion board feet. Such woods as yellow poplar, white oak, maple, ash, cucumber, and basswood were the main species cut from Kentucky forests.

Destructive logging practices and waste prevailed throughout the early lumbering days, and fires often followed logging. Trees were so plentiful that few people recognized the need for conservation.

Today there now remain only 11 1/2 million acres of the original 25 million acres of forest land. This still leaves 45 percent of the state's land area in forests - a most valuable and renewable resource that deserves consideration in any plan for economic development.

More than 90 percent of the growing trees are hardwoods, such as the oaks, the hickories and yellow poplar. Kentucky timber stands have a high proportion of small trees. Many of the larger trees show effects of past logging practices, forest fire damage, livestock grazing damage and insect and disease attacks.

Forestry Program For Kentucky

Since 1912, Kentucky has had some form of forestry agency to encourage better woodland management. It has attempted to reduce the number of severity of forest fires, to discourage the grazing of woodlands, to detect insect and disease attacks and to keep the citizenry informed of forestry activities and accomplishments.

Through gradual growth, the Division of Forestry has developed the strength required to cope with the many and varied problems inherent in any forest economy. Through its program the Division of Forestry is carrying out its responsibilities to protect, develop and keep continually productive the forests of Kentucky.

FOREST FIRE CONTROL: The protection of our forests from uncontrolled fire is essential if we are to continue to enjoy their many benefits. Forest fires destroy food and cover for our wildlife, kill or damage valuable timber, reduce the water-holding capacity of the soil and leave a blackened waste of once-scenic forest land.

Kentucky's first forest fire protection association was organized in Harlan County in 1913, with landowners paying one cent per acre per year in 1925, with the passage of Section II of the Clarke-McNary Law, the state was able to make a substantial increase in its fire protection program. By 1958, only 49 counties were being offered fire protection to all 120 counties. This expansion was completed in 1964.

State-organized fire protection in each county means provision for a forest fire detection system, either with lookout towers or by aerial flights. Calloway County's Kirksey and Chestnut lookout towers have been in non-use recently giving way to the more efficient fire detection methods of aerial flights. Fire protection also includes the establishment of a communications net; assignment of a fire guard and recruitment of volunteer fire fighting crews. Equipment such as motor vehicles, tractor-pump units, portable pumps, radios and hand tools may be included in a county protection plan.

Forest fire prevention is an important part of the state protection system. Because of carelessness or ignorance on the part of many of our people, an average of 2,500 fires each year burn 36,000 acres of forest land. Prevention programs, Smokey the Bear posters, radio and TV spots and other material have aided in reducing the number of fires that burn our valuable timber.

FOREST MANAGEMENT: To develop the forests of Kentucky and make them continually productive requires management planning and wise use. It is the objective of the Forest Management Section of near Woodsbend in eastern Kentucky.

Seedling trees for reforestation can be ordered in the fall and spring from the Division of Forestry.

FOREST PRODUCTS UTILIZATION: To help cope with many problems arising in logging and milling (the primary wood industry) due to economic changes, and to encourage efforts toward total utilization, profitably, of all timber cut, a Forest Products Utilization service is provided. Information on timber resources, forest product and lumber producers, studies and analysis of production methods and economics, log grading and its purposes, quality control, marketing assistance for timber and sawn products, wood treatment processes, and milling trouble-shooting cover many of the features of this service.

STATE FOREST ADMINISTRATION: To demonstrate good forest management practices in timber harvesting, timber stand improvement and reforestation, the Division of Forestry manages eight state forests with a combined total of 46,751 acres. A plan of management is made for each state forest, incorporating multiple use through application of wildlife management and recreational planning.

"Soft Craws" Catch Fish

By John Wilson

"You get a line and I'll get a pole. We'll go down to the crawdad hole."

A lot of Kentucky fishermen are going down to the crawdad hole these days, although not for the purposes implied in this old favorite folk song. Instead, they are after soft craws, an effective bait for a variety of fish.

Soft craws, in case you don't know, are crawfish which have just molted. After they shed their hard exoskeleton, crawfish are particularly palatable, since their new skin has not had a chance to toughen up. Also, they are not very active during this stage, making them easy for fish (or fishermen) to catch.

The easiest way to collect a bunch of craws for bait is to take a lantern down to a nearby creek at night, which is when the crawfish are most active. After you grab a few, you'll soon be able to tell the difference between the light-colored soft craws and the darker hard ones.

The best way to keep crawfish is in a styrofoam cooler or bait bucket. Put a batch of craws in the bottom of the cooler and cover them with damp cloths or paper towels. Then put on another layer of crawfish and more damp towels, repeating this process until you have enough bait for your fishing trip.

Don't put the crawfish in water—they'll either drown or harden. In either case they won't make very good bait. But if kept dampened and in a cool place, the craws will remain in the soft stage for several days.

To use the crawfish, hook them with a No. 2-0 aberdon hook and use either no weight at all or a small slip sinker. Fish them on the bottom around rocky banks, points or other areas of the lake where there are both native crawfish populations and good structure for game fish.

Although most soft craw fishermen are after black bass, they also will use them to catch white perch and catfish.

Ricky Lowe shows a fine stringer of bass which he caught on a recent afternoon fishing trip. Ricky took the fish on a deep water ridge using the old reliable purple worm. The stringer consisted of 7 fish weighing 18 pounds.

BEST MADE BETTER—Coleman's new Model 275-710 two-mantle gasoline lantern features modernistic styling, frosted-bar globe for glare control, and quick "on-off" operation with new one-piece valve system.

Coleman Introduces New Gasoline Lantern

To millions of campers and outdoorsmen throughout the world, the name Coleman is synonymous with the company's gasoline lantern.

Coleman lanterns have been used for decades in every conceivable way to brighten darkness, gaining fame in times of war and peace.

While users of the various models would tell you they would be hard to improve on, the design of the gasoline lantern has been continually refined since first introduced in 1914.

The good folks at Coleman have done it again with their new model 275-710 double-mantle lantern, being introduced this year as part of the company's 75th Anniversary Celebration.

It adds a deluxe version to the company's extensive lantern line.

The new lantern has a multitude of exclusive features. Some of them are:

- Easy-Lite construction, which incorporates the tip cleaner and control valve into one unit for easier, quicker operation.
- Operation is simplified by a single knob. With a flip of the wrist, you turn it to the "light" position, light it, wait one minute, then half of one turn to the "on" position. That's all.
- Style and appearance are completely new, too. The new lantern has a modernistic, designed, tapered and inverted globe. The globe is frosted to make the bright light of the two mantles easier on the eyes.
- A wide base gives the lantern more stability and an equally wide ventilator directs more light downward.
- Holding two pints of fuel, the lantern will operate for eight or more hours on a single filling of white gasoline or specially-refined lantern and stove fuels.
- Complete operating instructions are on the collar (center portion) of the lantern.
- Finished in dusk brown, the attractive new lanterns will stand out on the merchandising shelf, and will be available through all leading hardware, sporting goods and mass merchandising stores.

Kentucky Afield

Four are the basics of your sport—how to handle the equipment comfortably; how to tie knots; how to rig your line for live bait or artificial lures; and have at least some knowledge of the habits of the fish you seek.

All this requires a lot of practice and at least a little reading. The publications available are many and varied. A trip to your local newsstand will supply you with almost more how-to and where-to information than you'd want.

Another good idea is to find a lake that you know is productive and stick to it long enough to learn your way around. You'll find that certain places are nearly always productive and you won't spend a lot of time scouting new territory.

Be as quiet as you can, don't throw the paddle in the bottom of the boat or bang your tackle box around. And don't wear yourself out, either. Plan to spend three or four hours maybe, but try to make those hours fall during "prime" time. In late spring, summer and early fall, try the early morning or late evening hours. In early spring or late fall, mid-morning is a good fishing time.

The main things you need to make the "top ten" are desire and patience. Your stringer will soon show the results.

Know The "Insides" Of Your Deer

It is a fact that most people do not know the exact location of the many organs that make up their own human bodies. Actually, it really is unnecessary for we humans to know a great deal about our own anatomy with the exception of what is on the outside. If we are alling we can go to the doctor, point out the troubled area and this expert on internal human anatomy will do his best to locate the trouble and correct it. This method works fine for the human dealing with his own body but what about the hunter who is hunting white-tailed deer. Is it enough to shoot an arrow into a deer at random, trusting to luck for a good hit? I think not!

We bowhunters are (or should be) highly motivated in the area of the quick, clean, and most of all, the humane kill. This type of kill is accomplished by a well placed, razor sharp broadhead arrow sent on its way by a bow of sufficient poundage to penetrate deeply for the most positive result. All of the above is an ideal situation and is contingent on the bowhunter's ability to put an arrow exactly where he wants it and the knowledge of what a deer looks like on the inside, that is his internal anatomy.

Anything less than a command of deer internal anatomy is undesirable. Arrows do not have built-in guidance systems which automatically home in on the vital organs producing the desired effect. Only the person who loses the arrow has the power to decide where the arrow will penetrate the animal, to what extent the arrow will wound the animal and how quickly the animal will fall. No bowhunter has the right to release an arrow at a deer unless he knows where it will strike and what lies in its path once penetration is attained.

With some understanding of our own anatomy we can easily recognize that there are some areas of a deer's anatomy

By Barry William Drew

Surveys have shown that three out of four bowhunters cannot accurately locate the heart lung area of a deer. The same thing holds true for the location of major bone masses and the organs which make up the white-tailed deer's internal anatomy. Knowledge of the deer's anatomy is essential to the highly motivated bowhunter!

which are less desirable as targets than are others. Areas of heavy bone formation such as the shoulder plate will not normally permit penetration by an arrow. Such a barrier to penetration becomes even more formidable when the bow used is on the light side and the bowhunter is forced to use lighter arrows.

Arrows which are aimed at the deer's chest cavity (the heart and lungs are located here) will have to either pass between or go through the rib bones. These bones are quite stout but are also broad and relatively thin. A broadhead arrow which has been properly sharpened will not have a great deal of difficulty passing through the ribs.

The deer anatomy chart which accompanies this article was designed to give the bowhunter an idea of where the deer's organs are located. This chart also shows where the larger bone masses are. These should be avoided as targets.

The information provided on the anatomy chart can be easily transferred to your full size deer silhouette targets. A magic marker makes it fairly easy to draw in the heart-lung area (which is your best bet as a target), the major bones and the remaining organs.

The full size silhouette target will help you get an idea of what the deer will look like at the optimum hunting distance of twenty yards. Using this type target with its drawn in organs will enable you to become familiar with the deer's anatomy and will improve your chances of tagging a deer this fall season.

The deer that you shoot at will benefit because you thought enough of him to study his structure and you have learned what is inside his body, where it is and how to end his life quickly with your well placed, razor sharp broadhead arrow.

We as bowhunters must be well educated so that our own conduct in the field is above reproach. A good place to begin such education (or getting your head together) is with a careful study of what is inside the deer that you are going to shoot at this fall.

Make a silhouette target (or buy one) and draw in the bones and organs so that you will know where to shoot and where not to shoot before it is time to go out and hunt. Do this because you want to be a good bowhunter and because you respect the animal you will hunt as well as your fellow bow and sportsmen.

Good luck and good bowhunting.

The nemesis of the local farm pond bass population Pat Scott strikes again. Pat caught these two fine bass at an undisclosed farm pond on a bone colored super scoop.

HOT WEATHER BASS FISHING

Hot weather seems to slow down fishing for most anglers, however there are means of catching the "BIG" ones.

Basie on the bottom of the lake and stay in tight groups in the summer. From 8 to 10 feet they begin to fan out toward the shoreline, although they may never actually reach shore. Big bass school in groups rather than do the young. Therefore, bumping the bottom of the lake, off sandy points, rocky points, ledges, etc., with a good leaded, single hook and a buck-tail, or rubber skirt, and/or one or two spinners, can produce the big ones.

How you use the bait counts. Cast close to shore, let the lure sink to the bottom, and retrieve it very slowly with frequent pauses. The lure is then allowed to drop from ledge to ledge, or ease down the slopes.

The most successful technique we have discovered in the bottom-bumping, is fishing some distance offshore over the points. This type fishing in the hot summer months has produced numerous large mouth bass.

Too, should you run into lily pad beds, tie on a Johnson silver minnow with a split tail pork rind. Cast over the lily pads and retrieve very rapidly, so the spoon skims over the pads, then get set for the water to explode. Bass often hide under the lily pads during the summer. Also, before each cast, glance at your lure to make certain the pork strip is not hung on the hook point. If it should be over the hook, it may cost you the loss of that lunker. It is wise to stop each cast just before the lure hits the water to keep the rind from fouling the hook. The thinner the rind, the more it will dive, become more active and attract a bass.

HAPPY FOURWHEELING

Beef Ala Fourwheelers

Four Wheeling

By Hamp Brooks, Jr

FOUR WHEELING

Four wheeling and camping are two phases of outdoor life that seem to fit together very well. Just about everybody that enjoys four wheeling seems to enjoy camping and I suppose that most folks who enjoy camping in the great outdoors would probably enjoy four wheeling.

Going back one week to the July 4th weekend I can't help but remember the article on Waterbug Part II last Saturday. Now if old Dave had just had a husky four wheel drive rig with some great big tires he could have probably retrieved his boat from the middle of Okefenokee Swamp and all his woes would have been no problem. On the other hand a fellow who is already making payments on a new four wheel drive will probably have to ride in someone else's boat anyhow.

It was a real privilege for yours truly and the wife and two sons to tag along on the Twin Lakes Four Wheelers campout on the Fourth of July weekend. This event took place at Camp Energy in the Land Between the Lakes and what a campout it was. We had planned to leave town about noon but by the time I got Red Runt (the Jeep) hooked to the wagon sheet on tricycle tires (the camper) and got all the other stuff rounded up the lightning bugs were playing.

Having volunteered to tow Tatlock's boat along since he had just purchased a limousine without a trailer hitch, the Brown Bull (the truck) was also hitched up. It must have looked like Jed Clampett and bunch when we finally got started down the Poor Farm road. The two boys were about as excited as a blind dog in a butcher shop. The wife looked to be in the tradition of Calamity Jane driving the open Jeep with a red bandanna tied around a hairdo that didn't last past the Clarks River bridge.

We made the trip to LBL

Fourwheelers Watermelon, Oh, Leroy

without incident and arrived at the camp just before dark. Most of the fourwheelers were already there and they all pitched in to help us set up camp. We decided to cook "fourwheeler steaks" for supper. These are better known to most folks as hamburgers.

While the wife was busy unpacking and getting the camp set up I proceeded to prepare a fire. For some strange reason the bag of charcoal I had loaded was only three years old. After using a gallon and a quart of lighter fluid and going thru three boxes of matches I managed to secure enough heat to drive the insects to the back corners of the grill. Just about the time I was beginning to seriously study the possible problems of eating raw ground beef we finally got supper ready.

Those huge patties of 100 percent pure ground beef shrunk to something between the size of a sausage and a marble. The can of Pringles was slightly egg shaped due to the fact that number two son had stepped on it. Needless to say the chips weren't exactly as advertised on TV.

There were only four ants that got in my helping of beans and I don't think I ate more than three of them. My Pepsi-Cola was A-1 but the NuGrape that flowed across the table and soaked my lap wasn't hardly up to par. The dessert would have been fine if we had remembered to bring it. What a meal!

Things picked up after supper however as everybody loaded into the four wheel drives for a moonlight cruise. This was highlighted by the discovery of the largest timber rattlesnake I have ever seen. The truck leading the way ran over him and killed him so most of us gathered around to look after the caravan came to a halt. Highpockets assumed a roosting position on top of a roll bar until we left the snake behind. We also saw several deer while driving around.

The night was peaceful and quiet while the inevitable "bull" session took place until after midnight. The next morning everybody sacked out late except for a few fishermen. We made an effort to contact other four wheelers in the area on vacation and did meet some from Illinois and Texas.

During the afternoon several of the group headed to the beach for some swimming. The group also took part in the canoe race and the "greased watermelon retrieving" contest. Two watermelons were coated with some slippery substance and then dropped in the lake about a hundred yards from the bank. Over one hundred contestants dived into the water in a mad scramble to see who could get them.

The four wheelers centered their attention on one of them and after a few minutes of intense struggle Sonny Hooks emerged on the beach with the watermelon. Most of the credit really belongs to Dale Spencer who managed to "persuade" another contestant to turn loose of the melon in the midst of the struggle.

Chef Tatlock was in rare form when the call to supper was issued. The quarter of beef which had been cooking all day was pronounced ready after only sixty one taste tests. The beef was removed from the giant rotisserie and placed on the carving board (actually the hastily borrowed tail gate of a Jeep truck).

To say that it was "finger-licking" good would be slightly out of order since everybody ate so much they weren't able to

Yanks Wrap Up Little League Crown By Edging Past A's 8-7

The Yanks won the Little League championship Friday night as they posted a tough 8-7 win over the determined A's and then watched as the Astros handed the Pirates a 10-6 loss which left the Yanks alone in first.

Coming into Friday's play, the Yanks and Pirates were tied for the league lead with identical 10-3 records. But the Astros, who had lost earlier in the week to the Yanks, came up with the timely hits to post the win.

Final standings show the Yanks with an 11-3 record while the Astros, Pirates and Cubs all finish with 10-4 marks.

In the first game played Friday, a game which was rained out Thursday, the Cubs clipped the Reds 10-4.

It wasn't easy for the Yanks. They were coasting along with a 4-2 lead going into the top half of the fourth when the A's exploded for five runs.

Johnny Robbins and Keith Rogers reached on walks and George Bell reached on an error. On the play, there were a total of five errors and two runs scored and Bell wound up on third.

Kelly Rogers followed with an RBI single and Marty McCuiston belted his sixth homer of the season, a two-run shot, giving the underdog A's a 7-4 lead.

The Yanks came right back with three in their half of the fourth to tie the game. Don Hargrove walked and Robert Santagado smashed his sixth homer of the year. The third run of the frame scored on an RBI groundout by Dan Key.

Donnie Thompson came on in relief in the top of the fifth, for the Yanks and set the A's down. Then in the bottom of the fifth, Thompson reached on a walk, Charlie Santagado drilled a long single that looked like it was a homer all the way and the game ended as Don Hargrove singled in the winning run.

The contest was called after five innings because of the curfew.

Marty McCuiston took game honors as he belted three hits while George Bell, Keith Rogers and Jeff Chadwick also hit safely for the A's.

For the Yanks, Robert and Charlie Santagado each had two hits while David Billington, Ricky Hargrove and Don Hargrove all had hits. Charlie Santagado had a solo homer in the third for the Yanks.

The Astros were never really in trouble in their win over the Pirates which allowed the Yanks to win the league title.

The Astros scored a single run in the first, added two in the second and four in the third before the Pirates finally got on the board with a single tally in the bottom of the third.

Randy Mayfield, who went the distance on the hill for the Astros and got the win, singled in the first and later scored on a wild pitch to spot the Astros to a 1-0 lead.

In the second, Mayfield had an RBI double and Stacy Smith an RBI single. Two homers produced all four runs in the third. Tony Herndon had a solo shot and Craig Robinson blasted a three-run homer.

Other homers in the game were a two-run homer in the fourth by Jamie Morganti of the Pirates and a solo shot in the fifth by Eddie Requarth of the Pirates.

Holton Advances To Second Round In Murray Match Play

Mike Holton has become the first golfer to advance to the second round in the annual men's match play tournament at the Murray Country Club, defeating Al Lindsey 1 up in a close opening round championship flight match.

Forty-three golfers are matched in the tournament following 36 holes of qualifying play Aug. 5 and 6. Pairings have been made in three flights. The other first-round matches in the championship flight are:

Defending Champion Wally Young against Chad Stewart; Lee Stewart vs. James Parker; Norman Hood against Ralph McCuiston, the winner of which all face Holton. In the lower brackets it's David Buckingham meeting Tim Miller, Buddy Hewitt and Bobby Fike, Tom Muehleman facing Red Howe, Jr., and Gary Sullivan going up against Jiggs Lassiter.

In the first flight, in which no matches have yet been played and in the upper bracket Bob Burke is matched with Johnny McCage, Jim Payne faces Clyde Adkins, Joe Rexroat faces Richard Knight, and Al Jones takes on J. D. Rayburn.

In the lower brackets of the same flight Jere Stripling plays Lawrence Philpot, John Quattermost meets Judge James Lassiter, Graves Morris meets Jack Shell and Jerry Jones faces W. A. Franklin.

The Pirates outthit the Astros 12-9.

Requarth paced the attack for the Pirates with four hits while Darwin Bumphis and Morganti each had three. Vic Marshall and Joe Oakley had one hit apiece.

For the Astros, Mayfield led the way with three hits while Herndon had two. Also hitting safely were Stacy Smith, Scott Hill, Chris Hutson and Craig Robinson.

The Cubs jumped to a 7-0 lead after two innings and had no trouble in whipping the Reds. Six walks and an RBI single by Tommy Workman provided five runs for the Cubs in the first inning.

The Cubs had two homers in the contest. Joel Klein had a solo shot in the fifth and Keith Overby had a two-run homer in the same inning.

It was the sixth homer of the season for Overby and left he, Robert Santagado and Marty McCuiston all tied as the top sluggers in the league.

Darren Hooper got the win on the hill for the Cubs as he worked the distance and fanned seven men while giving up just two walks.

The Reds had just one hit in the game, that being a double by Gary Starks.

For the Cubs, Workman paced the attack with two hits while Klein, Kim Wilson, Overby, and Mark McCuiston all hit safely.

The Murray Little League All-Star team will open play Tuesday in the tournament at Paducah as they meet Fulton.

Morehead To Meet Louisville Feb. 4

MOREHEAD, Ky. (AP) — Among Morehead State University's basketball opponents this season will be Louisville, third finisher in last year's NCAA tourney. The two meet Feb. 4 in Louisville.

The Morehead schedule, announced Friday:

DECEMBER
Dec. 1—UNC-Charlotte, Dec. 6—At Bell State, Dec. 13—At Louisiana Tech, Dec. 15—At Virginia Tech, Dec. 20—California.

JANUARY
Jan. 7—At Eastern Kentucky, Jan. 10—Marshall, Jan. 12—Wright State, Jan. 17—At Austin Peay, Jan. 19—At Murray, Jan. 22—At Marshall, Jan. 24—Middle Tennessee, Jan. 26—Western Kentucky, Jan. 31—At East Tennessee.

FEBRUARY
Feb. 2—Tennessee Tech, Feb. 4—At Louisville, Feb. 7—Eastern Kentucky, Feb. 11—Xavier, Feb. 14—Murray, Feb. 16—Austin Peay, Feb. 21—Western Kentucky, Feb. 23—At Middle Tennessee, Feb. 28—At Tennessee Tech.

MARCH
March 1—East Tennessee, March 4-5—OVC tourney, Bowling Green.

Last year, the All-Stars went all the way to the State Tournament in Ashland before they were finally eliminated.

This Little League season has been one of the most outstanding ever and with the fine group of players on the All-Star team, Murray could well go back for another shot this year in the State Tournament.

The Boston Red Sox had the wind with them, which is like giving four strikes to Hank Aaron.

As if they aren't tough enough at Fenway Park, Boston's muscled batters got help from a strong wind and ripped 16 hits en route to an 11-8 victory over the Texas Rangers Friday night.

"You can see the way the wind was blowing," said Boston Manager Darrel Johnson. "You just get the fat part of the bat on the ball and it goes."

One of those aided by the elements was Bernie Carbo, whose three-run homer in the sixth put the Red Sox ahead for good 7-5. Another was Carl Yastrzemski, who got two hits, including a two-run single in Boston's fourth-inning eighth.

"You can't get enough runs in a game in this ballpark," said Yastrzemski. "Particularly not when the wind has been blowing out lately. But everyone seems to be hitting for us now. That's how we're winning."

The victory was the fifth straight for the Red Sox, the leaders in the American League East.

In the other American League games, the Cleveland Indians beat the California Angels 5-3; the Baltimore Orioles blanked the Oakland A's 4-0; the Chicago White Sox turned back the Milwaukee Brewers 5-3; the Kansas City Royals tripped the Detroit Tigers 5-2 and the Minnesota Twins routed the New York Yankees 11-1 in the first game of a doubleheader before losing the second game 4-3.

Carbo hit his 14th homer of the season into the screen in left-center off Stan Thomas, 4-2, after singles by Bob Heise and Tim Lincecum with one out in the sixth.

Indians 5, Angels 3
Rick Manning's inside-the-park home run with a man on base capped a three-run rally in the seventh inning, lifting Cleveland over California.

Orioles 4, A's 0
Mike Torrez pitched a four-hitter, leading Baltimore over Oakland. Torrez, 10-5, had a season high of nine strikeouts.

Horse Show To Conclude Tonight

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — The week-long Lexington Junior League Horse Show concludes tonight at the Red Mile with a 5-year-old newcomer seeking the five-gaited Grand Championship.

Magic Marvel, owned by Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Greenberg of New Castle, Pa., won the five-gaited gelding championship Wednesday night.

The 13-year-old chestnut gelding, Giddy Up Go, winner of five grand championships at the Lexington show, is scheduled to be retired after this season and is not entered tonight.

Greg Cruse Fans 16 As Legion Beats Jackson

Greg Cruse is starting to get warmed up. But all of the teams he's pitched against this year would probably disagree. They'd think he's already in top form.

After nursing a knee injury and missing several games early in the season, Cruse notched his third win of the summer Friday night in Holland Stadium as he pitched the Murray American Legion to a 5-2 win over Jackson, Tenn.

The hard-throwing southpaw, a native of Goreville, Ill., and a member of the Murray State mound staff, allowed just three hits to Jackson. He had excellent control as he whiffed 16 batters and walked just two. Both of the runs scored against Cruse were unearned.

It was a scoreless tie until the bottom half of the sixth when Coach Cary Miller's Murray team finally broke the ice.

Cruse smacked a shot to center and the centerfielder was smacked in the chest with the wicket. With two out, after Cruse had already stole second, Craig Dowdy reached base on an error to score Cruse.

Murray added another run in the seventh to go ahead 2-0. Stan Walton led off with a walk and stole second. Dale McCuiston came through with a one-out single to score Walton.

Jackson used two errors and a single in the top of the eighth to score a pair of runs and tie the game at 2-2.

The bottom half of the eighth started with Tony Bayless drawing a two-out walk. After stealing second, Bayless trotted around with the tie-breaking run as Steve Winchester murdered a fastball and sent it whistling into right-center for a single.

Lindy Suiter followed with a walk and put men on at first and second. Catcher Larry McGregor then drilled a pitch deep into rightfield against the fence and wound up on second with a double and a pair of RBI's to give Murray a 5-2 lead.

Cruse got into a jam in the last inning and had the bases loaded and only one out. But "Jose", as he is called by his teammates at Murray State, settled down and fanned the last two men to chalk up the win.

McCuiston had two of the seven Murray hits while Cruse, Bayless, Dowdy, Winchester and McGregor each added a safety.

The win gives the Legion an 8-3 record for the season entering tonight's 7 p. m. contest in Holland Stadium against a formidable Evansville Funkhouser team.

Tony Thurmond is scheduled to hurl the contest for Murray. Sunday, the Legion will be in Madisonville for a doubleheader.

Murray will host Union City to a single contest Tuesday and then entertain Greenville to a twinbill Wednesday.

Yanks Take 3-1 Win In Kentucky League Play

Pitching continued to dominate play in the Kentucky League as the Reds fell 3-1 to the Yanks Friday night.

It marked the third consecutive game that the winning team has scored five runs or less in the Kentucky League. Grady Bostick picked up the win for the Yanks and struck out 17 batters while giving up eight walks. He allowed three hits.

Dean Hodges took the loss for the Reds and gave up just one hit. Hodges fanned nine men and walked six.

The Yanks scored all the runs they needed in the bottom of the first inning.

James and Boyd each walked and moved up a base on a passed ball. Then Bostick slapped a two-run single for the only hit in the entire game for the winning Yanks. Bostick stole third and later scored on a passed ball.

The Reds' lone tally came in the third inning when Jeff Garrison singled and went to second on a passed ball. He crossed the plate when Keith Houston singled.

For the Reds, Garrison, Houston and Hodges each had one hit.

The Astros and Reds will play in Monday's 5:30 p. m. contest. Thursday night, the Astros won on a no-hitter as Gary Utley and Terry Smotherman combined for the win so the game Monday could be another exciting pitching duel.

Luzinski's Bat Leads Phillies In 2-1 Victory Over Houston

By BRUCE LOWITT
 AP Sports Writer

"A lot of people have been hurt by the All-Star voting," said Greg Luzinski with a shrug.

A lot of people have been hurt by Greg Luzinski, too. Like Doug Konecny and the Houston Astros on Friday night...and the rest of the National League on just about any other day or night.

Luzinski drilled two singles, a double and a decisive home run to lead the Philadelphia Phillies past the Astros 2-1. In the rest of the National League, Pittsburgh swept San Diego 6-2 and 5-0, Cincinnati swept New York 4-3 and 4-1, Chicago beat San Francisco 8-6, Los Angeles edged St. Louis 6-5 and Atlanta beat Montreal 2-1 in 10 innings.

"There's not much you can do about the voting system," said Luzinski, whose 24 homers and 76 runs batted in—both tops in the majors—and his consistent hitting (his 4-for-4 night raised his average to .305) was overlooked by the fans who named the starters in next Tuesday night's All-Star Game.

"Don't get me wrong," he added. "But other people have been hurt by the voting, too. Richie Zisk of Pittsburgh had a good year last year and didn't go. That wasn't right."

Pirates 6-5, Padres 2-0

John Candelaria pitched a four-hitter for his fourth straight victory and his first shutout in the nightcap victory that gave the Pirates their sweep of San Diego and permitted them to widen their East Division lead to 6½ games over the Phils.

He got all the backing he needed from Willie Stargell, who drove in three runs with a homer and two singles, and Ed Kirkpatrick, who hit a two-run homer. Dave Parker singled, doubled and tripled and scored two runs in the opening game victory.

Reds 4-4, Mets 3-1
 Pete Rose's single wrapped up a three-run sixth inning that gave the Reds their first-game triumph, then Johnny Bench's three-run homer in the first inning started Cincinnati on its way to the sweep of the Mets. With the two victories, the Reds opened a 10½-game margin over the Dodgers in the West.

Cubs 8, Giants 6

With the Giants leading 6-5 in the eighth inning, Chicago's Manny Trillo singled, went to second on a passed ball and scored the tying run on a single by Pete LaCock. After Don Kessinger singled, Bill Madlock hit a grounder to San Francisco shortstop Chris Speier, who threw wildly past first as LaCock scored the deciding run.

Dodgers 6, Cardinals 5
 Bill Buckner's two-run single in the seventh inning, his third hit of the game, vaulted the Dodgers past St. Louis.

Braves 2, Expos 1
 Montreal committed six errors, with the last one setting up Earl Williams' game-winning single for the Braves in the 10th inning.

Sullivan Qualifies For Tourney

A group of Murray youngsters qualified earlier this week at Mayfield for the Pepsi Cola Junior Golf Tournament which will be held Monday in Frankfort.

Lynn Sullivan of the Oaks Country Club headed the field in the sectional qualification round with a 76 in the 14 and 15-year-old boy's division.

Brent Hood of the Murray Country Club settled for second place in a three-way playoff in the 12-13 group. Jay Graves of Fulton won the title as both he and Hood shot 41's.

In the girl's play, Laurie Crass of the Murray Country Club had a 48 to win in the 14-15 division. Catherine and Carol Dick of the Murray Country Club captured the top spots in the 12-13 group.

Catherine shot a 53 while Carol had a 57.

Miller Predicts Winner Of British Open To Be Decided In Final Holes

By ROBERT JONES
 AP Sport Writer

CARNOUTIE, Scotland (AP)—The 104th British Open has turned into a dog fight and Johnny Miller, for one, has no idea who'll wind up on top after today's fourth and final round. But Miller does have two predictions to offer—the course record will probably be broken for the fourth time and the result will probably be decided on the final four holes.

Miller, the tall, blond Californian turned in a 66 to equal the record for the 7,065-yard, par-72 Carnoustie links in the third round Friday and jumped over Jack Nicklaus as a firm 11-4 favorite in the betting.

Miller finished in third place after the third round Friday, two strokes behind Bobby Cole of South Africa, who birdied the dreaded 18th hole to take a 12-under-par 204. Jack Newton, an Australian unknown, came in one stroke behind Cole.

Then came the big battalion from the United States—Miller at 206, Tom Watson one stroke behind him, Jack Nicklaus, Hale Irwin, John Mahaffey and Alan Tapie, all at 208. Also at 208 were Andries Oosthuizen, the South African youngster playing his first Open, and Neil Coles from Britain.

Which means the final round today begins with four strokes separating the top 10 players. And, as Miller said, "to name the right guy would be crazy. I've never seen a field bunched like this."

"The final result could depend on the last four holes. On these, you've got to have a lot of guts and enough experience to pull out the good shots."

Most dangerous of the lot is the 18th, a brute of a par 4 with a stream called the barry burn looping round from the start of the fairway to finish just in front of some sand traps ahead of the green. The 18th was the graveyard for many hopes in the first three rounds—last year's champion Gary Player landed in the burn every time he played the hole and finished up well out of contention with 215.

Both first and second round leaders—Peter Oosterhuis of Britain and David Huish, virtually an unknown from Scotland—faded in the third round Friday against the challenge from the U. S.

Bubonic Plague Victim Survives Ordeal

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — "You've never seen anything more frightening in your life. I mean, his whole body was black. He was as sick as any human could be and still live."

Dr. James Favata reflected on the month-long struggle to save 23-year-old Ralph Fulp from bubonic plague, an ordeal Favata described as a "nightmare for everyone."

He said Fulp, of Chino Valley in north central Arizona, will live but will lose parts of most fingers and some toes.

Of seven plague cases confirmed nationwide this year, the Arizona Health Department says five occurred in Arizona, most on the Navajo Indian Reservation in northern Arizona. All have been nonfatal.

The disease is usually transmitted by fleas.

In an interview on Wednesday, Favata recalled the morning of June 14 when Fulp struggled into his office.

"I told his mother then that if he had been on the reservation or in that area, I would say he had the plague," Favata said. "But the idea seemed so outlandish. The plague was something I read about in medical textbooks 15 years ago. I never in my wildest dreams thought I would be treating it. The case was a nightmare — for him, for his parents, for me, for everyone."

Hospital tests confirmed Fulp had the plague.

"By Sunday, he started to fall rapidly and went into severe shock," the doctor said. "He became extremely short of breath and his blood pressure fell to nothing."

Favata said that at one point Fulp's temperature was so high it wouldn't register on an electronic thermometer.

"By Monday, he was black from the tip of his head to the tip of his toes," Favata said. "I've treated a lot of people, but I've never seen anybody as sick as he was. By Monday, the odds of him dying were good."

In those first few days, the problem was not how to treat the plague, but how to keep Fulp alive until antibiotics took effect, Favata said. He said it was two weeks later before he "felt pretty comfortable" that Fulp would live.

State Health Department officials have been trying without success to track down where Fulp contracted the plague and that extensive trapping of rodents near Chino Valley has failed to produce clues.

According to medical journals, the last U.S. outbreak of the plague occurred in Los Angeles in 1924-25. Thirty-three persons contracted the disease, 31 died. Last May, a 17-year-old girl died of the plague in an area north of Los Angeles.

National News Roundup

CHICAGO (AP) — President Ford, in his first campaign-style trip since declaring his 1976 candidacy, says the push for economic recovery must be restrained lest pump-priming "break the economic dikes." Appearing before a black-tie business audience here Friday night, Ford declared, "If we are to avoid new, perhaps worse inflation than before, then our recovery policies must be based on fiscal restraint ... We must be moderate in our economic plans and expectations. False hopes must not be paraded before the American people — the promise of a quick fix — leaving them with empty illusions."

Ford was scheduled to fly to Michigan this afternoon after holding a regional news conference and delivering the commencement address at Chicago State University.

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — American astronauts wind up training in Texas and fly to Cape Canaveral today as a Russian rocket and spacecraft are being positioned on the launch pad for Tuesday's U.S.-Soviet space mission. Astronauts Thomas P. Stafford, Vance D. Brand and Donald K. Slayton were scheduled for a final practice session in an Apollo simulator and then planned to fly individual T38 jet planes from Houston's Johnson Space Center to Cape Canaveral. Soviet cosmonauts Alexei Leonov and Valeri Kubasov completed training Friday and were placed in quarantine today, according to a Soviet announcement, which also said the Russians' Soyuz spaceship and booster rocket were to be moved from a hanger to the launch pad today. The SaturnApollo countdown picks up at 10:30 a.m. Sunday.

PEANUTS

MARCE AND I ALMOST WON THE POWDER PUFF DERBY, CHUCK.

BUT YOU KNOW WHAT HE DID? HE TOOK BACK HIS AIRPLANE, AND WE COULDN'T FINISH THE RACE...

I PAID HIM A DOLLAR TO RENT HIS PLANE, AND I CAN'T EVEN GET MY DOLLAR BACK BECAUSE HE SPENT IT ALL ON COOKIES...

SCARF CITY!

NANCY

MY PICTURE IS IN TODAY'S PAPER...IT WAS TAKEN AT THE BEACH YESTERDAY.

LET'S SEE IT.

BEETLE BAILEY

I'M GLAD TO SEE THE U.S. CUTTING DOWN ON ARABIAN OIL IMPORTS.

YEAH, AND I THINK IT'S BEGINNING TO WORRY THEM.

THE PHANTOM

YOU'RE NOT GETTING AWAY ALIVE! I'M PUTTING YOU BEFORE A FIRING SQUAD!

OH, GENERAL...SUCH THREATS!

BLONDIE

DAISY, RUN UPSTAIRS AND GET MY SLIPPERS, PLEASE.

LIL' ABNER

I WAS MERELY STROLLING THROUGH CENTRAL PARK.

ALONE? AT NIGHT? SO YOU ENCOURAGED THESE TWO INNOCENT KIDS TO MUG YOU?!

FREEZE !!!

AIR VIEW OF HUGE CROWD AT BEACH

THEY'RE OFFERING A FREE SET OF NATIONAL LEAGUE GLASSES WITH EVERY TANKER FULL

IF ANYTHING HAPPENS TO ME...OUR CHIEF WILL SEND A NOTE TO YOUR PRESIDENT TELLING HIM WHO PAID FOR THAT SHOT!

GET OUT!

CONTINUED.

ACTUALLY, THAT'S PRETTY GOOD...LAST TIME SHE BROUGHT ME A HAIRBRUSH.

ADVERTISE WHERE IT PAYS... IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE...

Union Reps Say Tradesmen Losing Work Because Of Non-Union Contracts

PADUCAH, Ky. (AP) — Construction union representatives contend their construction and building tradesmen are losing work because of highway and bridge contracts given non-union contractors or "contractors unfavorable to most of the building trades."

W.B. Sanders, president of the West

Kentucky Building and Construction Trades Council, said at a council meeting Friday that he has written Gov. Julian Carroll to object to the alleged awarding of such contracts.

In a June 24 letter, Sanders said, he complained about contractors working on Interstate 24 across Western Kentucky and on Irvin S. Cobb Bridge between Paducah and Brookport, Ill.

The letter said these contractors are "very unfavorable to most of the crafts affiliated with the West Kentucky Building and Construction Trades Council."

The council represents about 6,000 workers in the 22 westernmost Kentucky counties.

Sanders specifically mentioned the Holloway Construction Co. of Wixon, Mich., which has contracts for $15.06 million worth of work on two sections of I-24 in the Paducah area, according to the Paducah office of the state Bureau of Highways.

He said the firm is affiliated with the United Steel Workers of America, which Holloway said, "took in the old United Construction Workers when it was kicked out of the United Mine Workers several years ago."

The Western Kentucky council also has complained to George Meany, president of the AFL-CIO, and to Robert A. Georgine, president of the AFL-CIO Building and Construction Trades Department.

In letters to Meany and Georgine, Sanders said, "I find that an industrial organization . . . has taken over an expelled organization."

The alleged affiliation between contractors and the steelworkers union, he said, is "taking away from the building and construction tradesmen their work."

Sanders said at the meeting Friday that western Kentucky has "hundreds of building and construction tradesmen unemployed," and that many unemployed union members have had to find jobs in other states.

CIA Report Reveals Personnel In White House For Many Years

WASHINGTON (AP) — For many years the CIA has detailed personnel to offices in the inner circles of the White House, according to the agency's own 1973 investigation of questionable activities.

The report, a portion of which was made public Friday by Rep. Lucien Nedzi, chairman of the House intelligence committee, says CIA employees were assigned "to the immediate office of the White House and to components intimately associated with the office of the president, such as the Council on International Economic Policy and the President's Foreign Intelligence Advisory Board."

The May 21, 1973, report also says agency personnel have been assigned to the Departments of Treasury and Commerce as well as the Agency for International Development.

Although the document does not make clear whether anyone in the White House was aware of the presence of these agency officials, both Nedzi and Senate intelligence Chairman Frank Church, D-Idaho, said it did not support the charge that the CIA had "infiltrated" or "penetrated" the White House.

That charge gained new momentum Friday with the claim by retired Air Force Col. L. Fletcher Prouty that former presidential aide Alexander P. Butterfield had been a CIA contact officer.

Later, one of the sources cited by Prouty as the basis for his claim denied the account.

Butterfield's alleged CIA link also was denied by the CIA, which issued a statement saying that Butterfield "has never been assigned to or worked for CIA in any capacity." However, the agency acknowledged that during his military career and during his years as an aide to White House chief of staff H.R. Haldeman, Butterfield "was given clearances for access to sensitive agency information."

Butterfield, who is most noted for revealing the existence of former President Richard M. Nixon's White House tapes, was reported traveling and could not be reached for comment. In La Jolla, Calif., a secretary at a research firm said Butterfield canceled an appointment there Friday.

Dr. Kenneth E. Harrell, dean of the college, said the curriculum may ultimately be expanded into a major program if sufficient student interest develops.

Named to head the Religious Studies Program as coordinator is Dr. Terry H. Foreman, whose academic specialties center on European religious thought and philosophy since the 18th century.

Foreman, 32, is a native Californian who has served on the faculties at The University of California at San Diego, Earlham College at Richmond, Ind., and Pennsylvania State University.

Foreman earned the B. A. degree at Stanford University, the M. A. degree at Pennsylvania State University, and the Ph. D. degree at Yale University, as well as completing two years of post-baccalaureate work at Union Theological Seminary in New York City.

He will teach three classes during the fall semester, two sections of Religious Studies 100, Introduction to Religious

Dr. Terry H. Foreman
Phenomena, and Religious Studies 300, Foundations of Western Religious Thought.

In addition to his classroom responsibilities, Foreman will also serve as the coordinator of a five-member interdisciplinary committee on Religious Studies as it develops the curriculum.

Other members of the committee are: Dr. Adam Lanning, assistant professor of sociology; Dr. Ken Wolf, assistant professor of history; Dr. Franklin Robinson, associate professor of philosophy; and Dr. Hughie Lawson, associate professor of history who is attending Princeton University this summer on a religious fellowship awarded by the National Endowment for the Humanities.

They will also teach religious studies courses as the curriculum is developed. Harrell said the establishment of the Religious Studies Program is "in response to a growing student interest in the area of religious thought."

He described the fall religious studies courses to be offered this way: Religious Studies 100 is structured to help students develop a critical understanding of the variety in religious life, and Religious Studies 300 is an attempt to assist students to identify and become acquainted with the most important factors in the development and emergence of three major western religious traditions—Judaism, Islam and Christianity.

Further information about the Religious Studies Program may be obtained by contacting: Office of the Dean, College of Humanistic Studies, Faculty Hall, Murray State University, Murray, Ky., 42071, (telephone 502 762-6936).

Kentucky News Roundup

SCOTTSDALE, Ky. (AP) — Scottsville Mayor Harry Payne Read says it will be mid-week before crews can begin an emergency project to pipe additional water to the thirsty community.

Residents are urged to conserve water in the meantime, Read said Friday.

Read declared a state of emergency Thursday night after the third city water main break in a week.

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — The city of Louisville is using federal money provided to create jobs for the unemployed in low-income areas to hire nine University of Louisville law students.

The students have been given 30-hour-a-week jobs in the city Law Department, at $150 every two weeks.

Billy Brown, associate regional manpower administrator in the U.S. Labor Department's Atlanta office, said students are not considered unemployed unless they are available to the job market full time, and added he doesn't consider 30 hours a week full time. But city Law Director Burt J. Deutsch says the city considers anything over 26 hours full time.

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — The University of Louisville Urban Studies Center has developed three half-hour video tape programs to tell Kentuckians about the workings of county government in the state.

The programs, produced with Kentucky Educational Television (KET) under a $14,000 grant from the Kentucky Humanities Council, will feature county government officials and will be narrated by Landis Jones, U of L assistant professor of political science.

The first, "Our County Courthouses," will be aired Monday on KET. The second program will be run July 28 and the third Aug. 25.

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — A funeral will be held Monday for Logan G. Gray, manager of Lexington's Blue Grass Airport for 12 years. Gray, 60, died at his home Friday.

The Covington native was formerly director of operations at the Greater Cincinnati Airport near Covington.

He was a member of the American Association of Airport Executives and secretary-treasurer of the Southeastern Airport Managers Association.

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — A Kentucky Fair and Exposition Center employee has died of burns suffered in a camper fire in Hardin County.

Charles Feireisel, 53, Louisville, died Friday at Louisville General Hospital, where he was admitted last Saturday after the mishap. Officials said Feireisel and his 22-year-old son, Larry, were riding in the camper on U.S. 31-W two miles south of Radcliff when a blanket covering the victim caught fire.

He was burned over 85 per cent of his body. The son is reported in satisfactory condition at Jewish Hospital in Louisville.

New Degree Programs Announced At University

Two new degree programs at Murray State University—a Master of Public Administration and an associate degree in civil engineering technology—approved this week by the Kentucky Council on Public Higher Education will begin this fall.

Dr. Farouk Umar, chairman of the Department of Political Science, said the M.P.A. program will provide people with an opportunity to earn a graduate degree that prepares them for professional careers in state, local or federal government service.

Courses in the M.P.A. curriculum will also be offered at some off-campus locations, according to Umar, to make them more accessible to interested people who are employed full-time.

Noting that the establishment of the M.P.A. degree "enables Murray State to meet the needs of a number of local government personnel who have inquired about such a program," Umar said two new faculty members will provide additional expertise for the program.

He identified them as Jack Hough, formerly a management analyst in Oklahoma City, and Kirkwood Callahan, formerly associated with the Institute of Government at the University of Georgia.

Umar invited people interested in the program to contact: Department of Political Science, Faculty Hall, Murray State University, Murray, Ky., 42071, (telephone 502 762-2661).

The two-year program in civil engineering technology is another associate degree being offered by Industry and Technology.

Dr. Hugh L. Oakley, dean of Industry and Technology, said the program will prepare a graduate of work in the field of the civil engineer as a link between the skilled craftsman and the professional engineer.

Further information about the associate degree program may be obtained by contacting: Industry and Technology, Applied Science Building, Murray State University, Murray, Ky., 42071, (telephone 502 762-3391).
